Respondent files this status report in accordance with this court's order that the parties file a status report on or before April 30, 2008.

The undersigned attorney has reviewed the office file relating to Dayton's appeal in the Alaska Court of Appeals, Dayton v. State, No. A-9422, and the case management website of the Alaska Court of Appeals. According to the court of appeals's website, the case is at the end of the briefing stage. Both the opening brief and the state's brief have been filed. Dayton's reply brief has been submitted and is undergoing a technical review by the court. Once the brief is accepted, which ordinarily occurs within a few days to a week, briefing will be considered complete. The case will then be ripe for decision. Based on the experience of the undersigned attorney, this next phase of the appellate process can take anywhere from approximately three months to two years.

DATED April 30, 2008 , at Anchorage, Alaska.
